These illuminated glyphs remain unchanged since our last encounter with the Renegade. Though we have not fully translated the Blacktron number-colour code, we believe it is a warning against using too low a grade of hyper-fuel.

Blacktron Engineering has clearly improved on their ingenious 'modular' designs - all modules can be reordered as needed for any of their operations.

138

More rocket power has been added to the Renegade via these fusion-activated energy pods. The range of the Renegade may now be able to reach Futuron bases in this quadrant we previously thought secure.

Remain on high alert, even if the Renegade leaves orbit!
Blacktron agents can deploy for espionage missions using one-person infiltration speeders, disguised as the Blacktron insignia!

We detect a significantly enhanced ship's computer compared to previous versions. This one appears to allow for advanced detection and signal processing, as well as video communication.

We have confirmed that encrypted transmissions are sent from this communications module to 6987 Message Intercept Base. The comms module may be detached and combined with the rear booster to form a remote comms relay.

Warning! This new Blacktron dropship technology means their stealth incursions could become even faster and more undetectable!
